Consider Condemnation.

Dispatches from San Francisco tell, also, of the meeting of the Federal grand jury to consider resolutions condemning the Department of Justice. This grand jury which indicted young Caminetti and Diggs is presumed to be meeting as individuals the same who composed the grand jury as before it was dismissed.

The meeting of the Cabinet today, the first since the Caminetti case developed, was watched with more than usual interest. Attorney General McReynolds was greeted at the White House with all ordinary cordiality by his colleagues.

Mr. McRaynolds. Secretary Bryan, Secretary Daniels and Postmaster General Burleson were the first to arrive. Mr. Bryan threw his arm over Attorney General McReynold's shoulder, and drew him to one side for a conference, the other two Cabinet members being beckoned into the discussion. Then the other members of the Cabinet came up and all greeted Mr. McReynolds as hitherto.

Wilson to Talk.

It was after the Cabinet meeting at few minutes before 1 p. m. that Mr. per man, told of the President's intention to make a statement on the Cammetti case. Said the Attorney General curt-

"I have nothing to say about these charges. The President will make answer at the proper time."

It was inferred from Mr. McReynolds' statement that the President announced this at the end of the discussion at the Cabinet meeting.

Meantime, at the Capitol, Chairman Clayton, of the Judiciary Committee of the House, was announcing that he the House, was announcing that he would call a meeting of his committee Thursday afternoon to consider the resolution for investigation offered by resolution for investigation offered by Congressmer. "I am not interested in Mr. Hinebaugh's resolution," said the California Cogressman, "because before the committee can decide whether the matter merits an investigation, it should have all the papers before it. My resolution, when we have that evidence before us. it will be time enough to determine whether an investigation by a special committee should be ordered."

Progressives are expected to rally to the support of the Hinebaugh resolution. Hinebaugh is an Illinois Progressive.
Secretary Lane is the fourth Cabinet member to have his name mentioned in the California imbrogilo. Mr. Lane is reported to have acted in a minor way in the Western Fuel Company case. "In order to prevent a miscarriage of justice I recommended, and Attorney General McReynolds acquiesced, that it would be better to try first the three directors who were officials, because this trial undoubtedly would develop the extent of the connection of Bruce and Smith with the alleged frauds.

Senate Adjourns Until Thursday, Names Cannot Be Sent for Confirmation Tomorrow.

The Senate having adjourned until Pharaday, President Wilson's selections for appointment to the District Con nission will not be made known until that time. At the same time it is stated on high authority that the President has definitely made up his mind to name Oliver P. Newman, the Washington reewspaper man, as one of the two zivilian Commissioners, especially inasmuch as he has been advised that, legally, there is nothing to bar Mr. Newman from serving because of time he has lived in the District.

Regarding the second place, there is considerable speculation. Talk of a "dark horse" candidate was supplemented this morning by a report to the effect that the second man would be Herbert S. Brown, who, though a canfidate for appointment as one of the three excise commissioners, is being considered by the President, it is said,

Mr. Brown's recent training in Dis-trict affairs has been somewhat along the line of President Wilson's known ideas regarding the proper sort of ad-ministration of District affairs. In mat-ters of property taxation as well as in other respects, the President is known to be anxious that Washington under his Administration, shall be the "model city" of America.

his Administration, shall be the "model city" of America.

Mr. Brown last year assisted Congressman George of the House District Committee in an investigation of methods pursued by the Assessor's office, with the result that it was charged that poorer property owners of Washington were being heavily burdened with taxes in order that the rich people of the country might be induced to settle in Washington and build handsome homes. Regarding the appointment which the President will make of three excise commissioners, there is now before him a list of fifty persons who have applied commissioners, there is now before him a list of fifty persons who have applied for appointment or whose names have been suggested to the President, including that of Gen. Robert Smith, formerly in command of the Fourth Regiment of New Jersey Militis, who is said to have a good chance of appointment. The new excise law of the District goes into effect July 1, and it is said to be the wish of the President to make his appointments to that board before that data.

SACRAMENTO, June 24.-Avoided by society folk who once welcomed them, Martha Warrington and Lola Norris. the two nineteen-year-old high school sorority girls, whose flight with two wealthy young Californians resulted in the resignation of District Attorney McNab, and promises still greater sensations, today remained in seclusion in

They declined to talk about the delay in the trial of their alleged seducers or tice with the ordinary procedure in the cases.

"I can't see that it is any one's business but our own," said Miss Warrington, at the home of her father, the Sacramento agent for the Sants Ferallroad. "Can't they let us alone?"

Loia Norris, the daughter of Edward Norris, a real estate broker, was scanning newspaper accounts of the demand for Federal Congressional investigation of the postponement of the trial of Maury Diggs and Drew Caminetti, but she, too, evinced no great interest in the happenings at Washington. Her parents shielded her from interviewers.

President Wilson shortly after his son's escapade.

The two girls went to their homes. Since the day they were returned from Reno they have been kept in conventilke seclusion. Few of their former friends have seen them. Scarcely any of the sorority girls who were their companions in their high school days have been visitors at their homes. It is understood that after the trial of the two alleged white slavers at San Francisco they will make their homes with relatives in other cites. cisco they will make their homes with relatives in other cities.

The elopement was Sacramento's sensation for several weeks. Diggs, Caminetti, and the two girls apparently dropped out of sight one night. Intimates of the two men had heard them boast of their attentions to the two girls and the elonement was magneted.

In Bungalow.

Three days later detectives found the four in a bungalow at Reno.

"One more day and you would not have found us." remarked Caminetti. With an air of bravado, "we were getting ready to go into the hills."

The girls broke down and cried. They wanted to be released, wanted to be given a chance to run away—anything but return home.

The police feared possible violence and smuggled Diggs and Caminetti into the city when they returned. Apparently their fears were well grounded, for a mob was waiting at the station.

Uncle Sam took a hand and caused the indictment of the two men on white slavery charges. A side issue was the indictment of Charles Harris, lawyer and politician of Sacramento, on charges of attempting to coach Martha Warrington to tell a story that would exonerate Diggs.

The fact developed today that Stewart had threatened the life of Policeman Moffett. The authorities had planned to watch him if he was placed on probation. It is also believed that he intended to kill Prosecutor Hawkens, and he had made menacing remarks about him during the day.
